Harry Tucker.

We wouldn't for a lox of Man About Town clears say anything about it, but for several days we have noticed the expression of deep thought and con-cern on the face of City Treasurer Charlle rern on the steep of the Falilips.

And we asked Mr. Ike Held about it, and Colonel Joe Welsh about it, and Mr. Jack Phillips about it, and we learned that the polite and accommodating litustrious Potentate was getting ready for Jis monthly call for the meeting of Acca.

Some years ago Mr. Harrison Dingman Some years ago Mr. Harrison Dingman made us an homorary member of the Shrine, and ever since then we have felt a hearty interest in its doings. Therefore it is with the utmost earnestness that we uppear to the fellow who took Frod Jurgens' overcoat when he was busy.

The weather has been cold since our good friend's overcoat has been among the missing, and we sympathize with him.

We have been tempted to send half of that coal Henry Beck sent us to warm up his cozy hall room, but when we considered that he has fee coolers and druggets of his own, with portlerres to put up in front of the windows, and some yood stoves, which he woukin't let us have at so much a week, because our salary wasn't big enough, we felt that our sympathy was about all he needed. So we sympathize with him to the fukest extent, and we hope this carnest appeal will effect the return of that evercoat.

Joe West, of the Engles, went to Washington to meet the local committee who expected to go to that city to wait upon Timothy Drydollar Sullivan, and he waited seven hours in the cold for the committee that never went.

Little George Guvernator and our friend Fuller, and Jim Bacigalupe, and Lonnie Wilson, were to have gone, but Tim headed them off, and when Joe gets this he will know that the committee won't go until next Wednesday A. M., when we expect to go along, for we remember that base-ball game in Norfolk last summer, and how the Home Brewing Compeny fellows held our end up.

We met Mr. Frank A. Linden yester-

We met Mr. Frank A. Linden yester-ay and asked him to tell us some good looks like Denman Thompson, and

He looks like Dennan Thompson, and we felt that he could tell us some good on sympathetic occasions.

So he went ahead, as he leaned up against Harry Madden's lunch counter, and to'd us enough stories to mix us up and make us forset all of them.

We felt good afterwards, however, and decided to go and see the "To Be Buried Alive Company" and look at him play the old man.

Pilly Whitacer, the leading man for Miss Sadie Martinot, is one of the old favorites. He has been in support of many of the leading performers, and has starred himself, so that he knows what he is taking about. We like him, and we think a whole jot of others do, too.

OF HUMAN INTEREST: STORIES OF TO-DAY.

A Senate Incident.

Senator Cullom rose yesterday with his eye on the presiding officer, says the Washington Post. In his hand he held a bill. At that very moment Senator Quay rose to address the clair. In his hand he, too, held a bill.

"Mr. Pres—" sa'd Mr. Cullom, stopping short in the middle of a word, as he beheld the Pennsylvanian standing in beseeching attitude. Quickly Mr. Cullom set down.

sat down.

Mr. Quay, not to be outdone in politieness, sat down himself, and then the two were just as they had been before either tried to address the chair.

There was an infinitessimal pause, such as the administration leaders figured out between the cond-of-the variety.

such as the administration leaders figured out between the end of the extra and the regular vessions of Congress. Then Senator Cullon stood up again.

"Mr. Prest—" but he proceeded only one syllable farther than the first time. By the same strange fatalty as that by which two persons trying to passeach other, on the street sidestep simultaneously the same way, Mr. Quay had again risen. Seeing him, only two or three desks away, Mr. Cullom quickly sank back again into his seat, Again Mr. Quay dld likewise. It seemed impossible for either senutor to sit or stand for any length of time because of the desire to, show politiciess, each for the other. "Are these Alphonse and Gaston?" inquired Senator Gallinger, in the midst of the general laugater, which broke the spell.

Then Senator Cullon stood up again.

I promise never to drink another drop."

Just the young man, becoming a bit flustiated, deckinsd with confidence and distinctness: "And I promise never to drop another drink."

Blanche Weaver, an actress in the company supporting Mr. Sothern in "The Lady of Lyons" on one occasion, had the line which runs: "No divorce can separate a mother from her son." But what Miss Weaver said was "No divorce can separate a Sothern from his mon." Mr. Sothern was himself on the stage in that scene. He saw the topsy-turvy gentence coming-something intuitive warned him of it—and he hastened to cover up the lines with his next speech. But he was not quite quick enough to concal the blunder from the people in the foremost rows, and a laugh went up that interrupted the action of the play and caused wonder in the rear of the house, where the error had not been deterted. Miss Weaver yeas so overcome with mortification that when the curtiful word lower luvenile Germs.
